

Into the Storm

This post is a little late; these storm pictures were taken last week as we were driving home from the cottage. As we got closer to Ottawa the storm clouds got darker and more ominous; it was obvious that we were driving right into the path of the storm...

and then out the other side! I must remember to carry my camera with me, as once again, these pictures taken with a phone from a moving vehicle are not of the greatest quality.