

Vaccines: No Exemptions

Vaccines have eradicated many diseases in Canada that are still prevalent in other countries around the world.

There's a good reason for that; science has proven that vaccines work.

We should be proud of that accomplishment and go the extra mile to protect it and our compliant citizens. For some reason our country is more concerned about the cultural rights or beliefs of everyone except our own citizens.

We have become all inclusive to an extreme, risking the safety and health of our own, especially those most vulnerable.

If not non-existent and unavailable, exemptions should be much stricter, for valid (proven) medical reasons only.

A simple immigration rule or federal law could enforce the no exemption/exception. No vaccines, no entry into the country.

Vaccine exemptions should also be banned in schools. Most of us must have our children vaccinated before they attend school. No proof of vaccination means no school attendance...simple, no exceptions or exemptions.

Who's with me?